SUBJECT

Information relating to wastewater discharges, their monitoring and specific queries about discharges into Lough Neagh.

REQUESTS AND RESPONSES

1. How many combined flow discharges points can overflow to waterways during heavy rainfall.

As of May 2024, there are 2,444 operational storm overflows deployed across Northern Ireland's public wastewater network, at pumping stations and at treatment works. Details of these are available on our Storm Overflow web page. All storm overflows owned by NI Water can spill dilute wastewater to waterways when large volumes of storm water enter the combined system during times of heavy rainfall, if the system is at risk of being overloaded.

2. Whether these overflows are monitored by (a) volume; and / or (b) an event.

Event Duration Monitors (EDMs) – 82 Overflows

Recorded, non-predictive data but limited to count/frequency & duration

As of the end of May 2024, of NI Water's 2,444 operational storm overflows, 82 overflows have operational EDMs¹ returning recorded, non-predictive, information on when a spill is occurring (count) and for how long (duration). The frequency of spills (event) for the 12-month period ending 31 December 2023 is listed under "Occurrence of spills per annum" (1 January 2023 – 31 December 2023) on our Storm Overflow map online. This can be viewed by clicking on the relevant Storm Overflow red pin. Although we have not yet shared the spill duration data, we aim to do so before the end of the Summer, when this has been fully verified. As such, Regulation 12(4)(d) of the EIR – Incomplete data – currently applies.

Regulation 12(4)(d) – Incomplete data

This exception provides that "a public authority may refuse to disclose information to the extent that the request relates to material, which is still in the course of completion, to unfinished documents or to incomplete data".

For those Storm Overflows with verifiable EDMs installed, it is NI Water's intention to publish recorded, non-predictive, spill volume data directly to our Storm Overflow map before the end of the Summer (once the data has fully verified).

The Information Commissioner's Office (ICO) considers that information requested should be released unless the public interest weighs in favour of withholding such information.

The public interest in release is that it demonstrates NI Water's willingness to comply with the disclosure provisions of the EIR and assists the public in understanding current affairs, such as the discussion of wastewater discharges to watercourses.

However, against this and under Part 2, Regulation 5(4) of the EIR "For the purposes of paragraph (1), where the information made available is compiled by or on behalf of the public authority it shall be up to date, accurate and comparable, so far as the public authority reasonably believes."

Volume of spills

None of the storm overflows have meters to record the volume of spills. Flow meters are very expensive to install and maintain. They can cost up to £150,000 per storm overflow and NI Water endorses the assessment made by Water UK that the cost to install EDMs across the entire network is already significant and the investment required to upgrade this technology to monitor spillage volumes would be more effectively spent fixing the problems, rather than improving their measurement. There may be exceptions to this, depending on circumstances, and NI Water will remain open to these and alert to the application of any lower cost new technologies that may help.

As such, and specific to the disclosure of recorded, non-predictive, storm overflow spill volume data, Regulation 12(4)(a) of the EIR (Information not held) provides that "a public authority may refuse to disclose information to the extent that it does not hold that information when an applicant's request is received". All exceptions under the EIR are qualified and so, in deciding whether to disclose the requested information, NI Water must consider the public interest. However, this is not possible where the information is not held.

Whilst NI Water cannot provide recorded, non-predictive, wastewater spill volume data for our storm overflows, we can provide predictive, modelled, spill volume data per year (m³). For all 2,444 of our overflows, this is available on NI Water's Modelled Spill data Spreadsheet.

Lough Neagh

There are 724 storm overflows in public ownership that spill to Lough Neagh, 106 directly and 618 indirectly. This is around 30% of the total number in Northern Ireland's public wastewater system.

NI Water currently has no operational EDMs at the storm overflows to record the occurrence and duration of spills to Lough Neagh. The total estimated investment required to deploy EDMs at all direct and indirect storm overflows to Lough Neagh is in the region of £27m. By the end of Price Control period PC21 (link below refers), NI Water expects to have around 300 (40%) EDMs installed across the 724 Lough Neagh-related storm overflows, with the remainder subject to funding being agreed in PC27. Subject to appropriate funding, Lough Neagh Local Management Area (as defined by the Neagh-Bann River Basin Plan for Water Framework Directive) is being prioritised for EDM installs in Phase 3 (Years 5 and 6 of PC21, i.e. April 2025 to March 2027).

Modelling Spills (predicted count & predicted spill volume only) 2,362 Overflows

For those 2,362 Storm Overflows without operational EDMs, NI Water does not hold actual, recorded, spill data and, as such, Regulation 12(4)(a) of the EIR again refers. Instead, NI Water models use historical rainfall data to generate an annual average for frequency and volume of spills, i.e., a 'typical year' of spill performance.

NI Water relies on the analysis and findings of industry standard hydraulic models to simulate observed flows and predict spills across the wastewater networks. As agreed with our Regulators, we have been investing in developing integrated suites of models to understand more accurately the spill performance of storm overflows and their impact on the receiving aquatic environment. Our Drainage Area Study (DAS) models are built and calibrated to industry best practice (Chartered Institute of Water and Environmental Management) and approved by the Northern Ireland Environment Agency (NIEA). The models are typically simulated using 20 years of historical rainfall data to generate an annual average for frequency and volume of spills.

The models, supported by some flow meters that measure the rate of wastewater flow at various points, give indicative performance predictions, but have some limitations. They cannot, for example, take account of operational conditions in the actual network, such as the build-up of silt and blockages which can result from the disposal of inappropriate materials to sewer.

The results of the models consider average performance in a typical year. Spill performance during years when Northern Ireland experiences abnormally low or high rainfall is not represented in the models.

Although accuracy has improved, predictive modelling still relies on assumptions that mean that it will not be 100% correct. Despite their limitations, models are important in helping us and the NIEA to understand what is happening in our system and where upgrades are required to better protect the environment.

The coverage of our models has expanded following significant investment and now covers over 80% of our network and 50% of our storm overflows, with around 39% assessed as Unsatisfactory (Page 11 of Northern Ireland's Wastewater System booklet refers).

The models do not give information about what is happening in a specific year. For this, NI Water would need actual data from flow monitors.

Our models forecast the volume of storm water spills in an average rainfall year as 18 million cubic metres (m³), yet we believe it is more realistic to consider this to be a range of 16-20 million m³ to reflect limitations in the simulation. Around 80-

90% of all wastewater that comes into our system is processed through our treatment works and not spilled. The overall volume is based on 827 storm overflows where modelling indicates they may spill and the 382 where the model is indicating no predicted spills. This spans 65 drainage areas. These cover the most densely populated areas where the highest volume of spills is likely to occur. Around half of spillage is from storm overflows in the network and half from pumping stations and storm tanks at our treatment works.

Modelled, predictive, wastewater spill frequency per year and predicted spill volume per year (m³) is available for all 2,444 overflows on NI Water's Modelled Spill data Spreadsheet.

Modelled, predictive, wastewater spill frequency per year and predicted spill volume per year (m³) is available for just those overflows without operational EDMs, i.e., 2,362 overflows, at Annex B.

Modelled Volume of spills – Lough Neagh

In an average year, the total modelled number of annual spills across the direct and indirect Lough Neagh storm overflows is 279 and the volume of wastewater modelled spills from the same storm overflows is estimated at 2.2 million m³.

Our overall modelling shows that a total of 16 to 20 million m³ of wastewater is spilling to waterways on average each year from our storm overflows across the whole of NI. Therefore, around 10-15% of our spills by volume are estimated to be directly or indirectly going to Lough Neagh.

3. The number of (a) events; and / or (b) volume at each overflow location in the last year.

NI Water's answer to Question 2 above again refers.

For those 82 operational EDMs as represented by pins on our Storm Overflow map, the table below outlines some key facts.

	2023
Number of EDMs operating	132
Total number of wastewater spills recorded	3,751
Total duration of wastewater spills recorded (hrs)	20,636
Average number of spills per overflow	28
Storm overflows spilling fewer than 10 times per annum	60
Storm overflows that did not spill at all in the year	11

The storm overflows with the greatest number of spills into bathing waters are listed on our EDM webpage.

The number of spills recorded will vary from year to year. 2023 was the third wettest on record in Northern Ireland, with 1,399 mm of rain reported by the BBC using Met Office data. Record rainfall means our storm overflows have been spilling more frequently than we would have previously anticipated.

4. How many of these enter Lough Neagh and its catchment area (a) directly; and / or (b) by other means.

724 storm overflows are designed to spill excess wastewater to Lough Neagh during periods of intense rainfall (106 directly and 618 indirectly).

5. The number of wastewater treatment facilities that can discharge (a) directly; and (b) indirectly into Lough Neagh or its catchment area and have breached discharge consent in the last 5 years; and
- a. the associated (a) volume; and*
 - b. level above discharge parameters with each breach.*

There are 339 treatment works that discharge treated final effluent into Lough Neagh, 66 directly and 273 indirectly. This is around a quarter of the total number of treatment works serving the whole of Northern Ireland.

Collectively, the works attributed to Lough Neagh deal with wastewater load from homes and businesses that have the population equivalent (PE) of around 580,000 people. They cover the major towns (in alphabetical order) of Antrim, Armagh, Ballyclare, Ballymena, Banbridge, Coalisland, Cookstown, Craigavon, Dungannon, Lurgan, Magherafelt, Portadown and Tandragee. They range from very small treatment works serving a few houses to our largest works at Ballynacorr, which operates to a PE loading of around 120,000 and serves the towns of Lurgan, Craigavon and Portadown.

Treated final effluent from 339 wastewater treatment works was recycled directly or indirectly back to the Lough. Based on assessment of performance records (a combination of measured samples of effluent quality for larger works and site inspections by NIEA for smaller works) 333 works passed compliance in 2023.

Annex C attached details all parameter exceedances for the wastewater treatment facilities that can discharge (a) directly and (b) indirectly into Lough Neagh, or its catchment area, for the past five complete calendar years. In addition to sanitary parameter failures, the exceedances of any further consented parameters known as Priority Substances parameters have also been provided. Priority Substances are not currently included in the compliance assessment as reported in the Wastewater Key Performance Indicators.

It is important to note that, whilst a single sample may exceed the consent parameter limit, this does not necessarily mean the works is assessed and reported as failing for the calendar year. Overall compliance assessment is based on a 95 percentile Look-Up Table compliance assessment, meaning there is a number of permitted failures (depending on the number of samples scheduled for each particular site).

In 2023, the compliance assessment processes identified that 333 of the 339 works were operating within discharge consents. Compliance was achieved for 99% of the population served.

The six works that were not meeting the standard are shown in the table below, together with the action needed to return them to compliance:

Works not passing compliance assessment	Population Equivalent (PE) of the works. (A population equivalent includes people and trade)	Action to resolve
Aughnacloy	C. 2000 PE	Currently under assessment for PC27, inclusion will be subject to an agreed prioritisation
Cluntoe Richardson	C. 600 PE	Currently under assessment for PC27, inclusion will be subject to an agreed prioritisation
Moy	C. 4000 PE	Within PC21 Programme, estimated to commence 25/26
Robinsonstown	C. 500 PE	Within original PC21 Programme but now deferred. Unaffordable due to reduced CDEL allocation
The Loup	C. 300 PE	Currently under assessment for PC27, inclusion will be subject to an agreed prioritisation
Diamond Cottages 1	C. 30 PE	Within original PC21 Programme but now deferred. Unaffordable due to reduced CDEL allocation

Following the implementation of wastewater regulation reform expected in 2027 (as identified in the recent NI Audit Office report “Funding water infrastructure in Northern Ireland” March 2024), the assessment process will change to an unannounced sample programme.

Discharge Consent Breach Volumes

Flow meters are installed at 23 of the largest treatment works. These record the volume of treated final effluent that is recycled back to Lough Neagh or the nearby vicinity and serves 91% of the population. The total volume of treated final effluent discharged from these works in 2023 was 161 million m³.

NI Water currently does not assess flow conditions on the consent, but the Company is preparing to do so under Wastewater Regulation Reform, so again Regulation 12(4)(a) (Information not held) applies.

6. Number of wastewater treatment facilities controlled by NI Water, broken down by discharge location.
- c. the average volume of discharge during (a) normal conditions.*
 - d. heavy rainfall causing maximum flow; and*
 - e. how many of these discharge points can enter Lough Neagh (a) directly; and / or (b) by other means.*

Number of wastewater treatment facilities controlled by NI Water, broken down by discharge location.

Regulation 6(1)(b) of the EIR states that “Where an applicant requests that the information be made available in a particular form or format, a public authority shall make it so available, unless the information is already publicly available and easily accessible in another form or format.”

NI Water’s Storm Overflows webpage already provides a map detailing all 2,444 of NI Water’s discharging wastewater treatment facilities (Storm Overflows) and the associated discharge point coordinates and receiving waterbody.

NI Water’s Modelled Spills 2024 Spreadsheet, published online, provides the discharge point coordinates and receiving waterbody, for all 2,444 of NI Water’s discharging wastewater treatment facilities (Storm Overflows), in tabular form.

Around half of spillage is from storm overflows in the network and half from pumping stations and storm tanks at our treatment works.

The average volume of discharge during normal conditions.

As previously stated, none of NI Water’s storm overflows have meters to record the volume of spills and, as such, Regulation 12(4)(a) (information not held) again applies. Predictive, modelled, spill volume data per year (m³) are published to NI Water’s Modelled Spills 2024 Spreadsheet.

Average volume of discharge during heavy rainfall (maximum flow).

NI Water's previous answer again refers.

How many of these discharge points can enter Lough Neagh directly?

There are 106 storm overflows in public ownership that spill to Lough Neagh directly. There are 66 treatment works that discharge treated final effluent into Lough Neagh directly.

How many of these discharge points can enter Lough Neagh by other means (indirectly)?

There are 618 storm overflows in public ownership that spill to Lough Neagh indirectly. There are 273 treatment works that discharge treated final effluent into Lough Neagh indirectly.

To address Unsatisfactory Storm Overflows primarily, we need solutions in place to deal with the excess volume of wastewater during times of heavy rainfall. The most effective solution is to stop storm water getting into and overwhelming our combined sewer system by separating and diverting it elsewhere. The Living with Water Programme (LwWP) for Belfast includes examples of the use of natural drainage to relieve pressure on the sewer network. The installation of temporary storage for storm water and screens to remove visible material also helps to meet the standard.

People can also assist by avoiding putting items down the toilet or drain that cause the sewer to block or restrict the flow. Wet wipes, as well as fat and oil, are particularly problematic.
